Highwaymen Convicted—Robbers at Alleville—A Farmer Held up and Robbed—Ex-Merchant Acquitted of Fraud—Serious Cutting Off.

We Lost One Game.

For the first time this season our home team of base ballists has been defeated, the score last Thursday resulting as follows: Hopkinsville 7, Nashville Maroons 8. Errors in the field let in two scores—in the eighth and the same number in the ninth inning, and placed the visitors out ahead. But on Friday our boys recovered themselves in fine style, capturing the game in a walk for a heavy score of 12 to 8. The Maroons made about a dozen errors and this, together with the heavy batting of the Locals, was bound to result in a victory for our boys. Every member of the Locals made safe hits, bat the visitors did not do almost any direction at all. Schmidt, who pitched for the home nine Friday, struck out fifteen men during the game. Womack was not in the last game and Jeff Morris held down 1st like a professional. He also did some clever batting, although it was his first game that he had. The Local will go over to Henderson Saturday evening for games, and the Henderson club returns with them and plays two games—Thursday and Friday—at Athletic Park, this city.

Accident to an Ice Man.

Yesterday morning while Ellis & Co.'s ice wagon was making its route out North Main street, Mr. Henry Frankel's 4-year-old boy wanted to get into the truck. Mr. Ellis and after he had taken up the child from the seat to the ground, the boy fell from the truck and struck the feet of the horses. Mr. Ellis at once saw the danger the little fellow was in and reached down to lift him from the ground. Mr. Ellis however, lost his balance and fell to the ground and sprained his right knee. Mrs. Frankel saw the danger of her little boy and rushing from the truck, succeeded in getting him out of his dangerous position without his receiving a scratch. Mr. Ellis sustained no injury except a broken rib, but will be laid up several days as a result of the accident.

County Court Matters.

The following cases were disposed of by Judge Breathitt since our last report: Harry Campbell, colored, breach of peace, fined $2.50 and costs. Ernest Higgins, h. p., fined 1 cent and costs; Geo. and Jim Green, both colored, disorderly conduct, both fined $2.50 and costs. The Greens could not put up the required amount and were sent to the workhouse. Wm. Gandy, h. p., with a mule, was fined $20, and Wm. Powell, colored, on a similar charge was required to pay $20, with trimmings. Also, the latter two defendants were arrested at Kelly by Marshal Boyd and brought to this city for trial.

Burglary at Alleville.

Last Tuesday night Alleville was visited by burglars, and several citizens were lost by their visit. The robbers entered the house of L. & N. Wilcox, agents Campbell & Wilcox, and got his gold watch and secured little money. They got $50 in the hands of Coleman Gill and a Mr. Shimnick is $7 behind and minus a pair of shoes. They used chloroform, and had little trouble in taking possession of a place. They were evidently experts and left no clew behind by which they could be identified.

Our Second Nine Will Play.

The Hopkinsville second nine will play Clarksville's nine No. 2, at Athletic Park to-morrow afternoon. The game will be called at 2:30, in order that the visitors may return home in the evening. Our second nine is composed of good players, and will put up a first-class game. The Clarksville boys also put up a fine game, and those who attend will see an excellent amateur ball. Admission will be 15 cents. Ladies free.

Suicide at Morganfield.

Last Thursday evening at Morganfield, Tony Schneipp, an Evansville butcher, took his own life by sending a bullet crashing through his brain. Schneipp left his home two days before and had shown signs of trouble, but those who knew him did not suspect that he contemplated self destruction. His body was found on his person saying he was in trouble, only this and nothing more. He was a man about 40 years old.

Moore Heimannson Set Free.

Moses Heimannson, the merchant who was indicted recently at Lafayette, and who was indicted at Louisville for obtaining goods under false pretences, was convicted and sentenced to two years' servitude in the penitentiary. Subsequently, however, he received a paroled and was discharged. —Cadiz Telephone.

MADE QUICK WORK.

The Amateur Highwaymen Go to the Edgerton Penitentiary.

Two of the three negroes who held up Mr. T. J. Tandy, near Pembroke Thursday morning, and robbed him of $20 and a silver match box, were caught in Clarksville Friday by Marshal Burris of Pembroke. All three of them were McGehee's storekeepers. They got away. They had been complete ne'er-do-wells, including leather belts and black silk caps. They had put on their new clothes, leaving the old ones at a cabin near by. They had then returned and were buying shoes when the officer appeared. The smallest of the three was near the door, and when the other two were arrested he darted out of the back door and escaped. Those caught were brought to the city Saturday morning. They gave the names of Jim Elliott and Wyatt Mallory alias Melvin. The first is about 20 years old, a big, black, strapping fellow with a very prominent nose. The other is 13 years old and somewhat lighter. He said he lived at Springfield, Tenn. Judge McCarron empaneled a special grand jury and they were indicted before noon. They were tried at 1 o'clock, being defended by Mr. G. W. Southall and prosecuted by Mr. Garret. The jury deliberated 145 minutes and in 15 minutes returned a verdict of 10 years in the penitentiary for Elliott and 5 years for Mallory.

They entered a bar and made no denial. They were identified by Mr. Tandy and $4 of the money and a silver box recovered. They were very much surprised when they learned that their crime was not a simple warehouse offense. They confessed when caught and said they were willing to be taken right to the warehouse without a trial.

The sheriff will leave with them for Edgerville this week.

END OF THE TROUBLE.

Compromise Effect in Union's Railroad Tax Re-imburse Mr. Preston.

MORGANEIL, June 19.—It is authoritatively announced that the great railroad tax question, which has been absorbing all attention in parts of Union county, is about to be settled. Attorney John Feland, who represents bond holder Preston, says his client is willing to accept a compromise offered some time ago by referees appointed from the tax districts.

The term of the compromise, which Mr. Preston agrees to accept, are that he shall be paid $75,000, the amount he paid for the bonds, with six per cent and costs; Geo. and Jim Green, both colored, disorderly conduct, both fined $2.50 and costs. The Greens could not put up the required amount and were sent to the workhouse. Wm. Gandy, h. p., with a mule, was fined $20, and Wm. Powell, colored, on a similar charge was required to pay $20, with trimmings. Also, the latter two defendants were arrested at Kelly by Marshal Boyd and brought to this city for trial.

At that time he refused to listen to the proposition, but held out for the bonds with six per cent and costs.

Interest added. Some infidels have been at work on him since, however, and he has come around to a compromise.

The effect that a settlement of the bond business will have in the tax precincts may be readily seen. Property in the Caseyville, Spring and Lindsborg sections will be largely depopulated because nobody cared to invest in such land with the railroad bonds hanging like clouds over it.

Now it is believed property will appreciate in value, the farmers will take more interest in their work, and things will take on a more rosy color.

The same persons who would would die before paying the full amount of the indebtedness, will it is understood, cheerfully fork over their proportion of the compromise.

Papers that will forever settle the question are now in course of preparation by the referees, and a final judgment will be made in a few days.

The matter of the deal has been kept a profound secret for some time and it was only by accident that the facts were learned.

Three Hold Robbers.

"There is no denying the fact that Gen. Hardin and his friends are becoming much alarmed over the outlook. The entrance of Berry as a dark horse in the race and the 125 votes controlled by Capt. Stone have caused much anxiety. The friends of the general, who are now not so certain that they will win on the first ballot. They realize, too, that every subsequent ballot will lessen Mr. Hardin's chances for the nomination. Mr. Hardin still refuses to say much for publication. He is too busy sending telegrams and letters, and conferring with his friends."

—o—

"The Convention will be called to order at noon, in Music Hall, by Hon. Jno. D. Carroll. It is not likely that there will be any balloting before to-morrow afternoon at the earliest.

Do You Want to Stop Tobacco?

YOU CAN BE CURED WHILE USING IT.

The habit of using tobacco grows on a man until grave disease conditions are produced. Tobacco is a powerful stimulant, causing heart trouble, stomach; dyspepsia; loss of memory, nervous affection; contraction of the retina, resulting in impairment of vision, even to the extent of blindness; it causes constipation, which may result in malignant suffocation; dull pain in region of heart, and causes heart palpitation and weak pulse, resulting in fatal heart disease. It also causes loss of vitality.

To quit suddenly is too severe a shock to the system. It is better to gradually reduce the amount. "BACCO-CURE" is a scientific and reliable and safe medicine which absolutely deprives the body of the tobacco habit without loss of will power, and with no inconvenience. It leaves no taste in the mouth, and you can smoke the last cigarette you want, while taking "BACCO-CURE." It will notify you when to stop. It is a safe, reliable and effective remedy.

A SIMPLE PHONOGRAPH.

How One May Be Constructed at Small Expense.

Not as Perfect as the Edison Apparatus, But Sufficient to Demonstrate the Various Principles of the Talking Machine.

A home-made phonograph can easily be constructed according to the descriptive and detailed directions in the Philadelphia Record, given below. The phonograph comes very high, while the instrument here described will be of very little expense. Of course, it is not as perfect as the Edison apparatus, but is sufficient to demonstrate the principles.

The first thing to be made is the mouthpiece, forming the receiver and transmitter at the same time. It is represented in Fig. 1 by a horizontal section, in Fig. 2, by a vertical transverse section. A small wooden funnel (A) can be turned by a handle (B), cost a few cents; circular disk (C) of very thin sheet iron, two wooden rails (C and D), and the feather spring (E) carrying the dished part of a needle go to make up the mouth-piece. The sheet iron is held by cement to the mother, and the speaking funnel; to this are finally attached the two rails (C and D), extending somewhat beyond the funnel (A); the spring (E) has to be fastened to one of the rails. A minute screw, a short piece of wire, and the disc (D) a short piece of rubber should be placed. It will be observed that the point is not centered, but stands to one side of the center. The guide rails (C) and (D) serve to run the apparatus across the ground, so that the mouth-piece, and the admiral yacht yacht, will be under command of Vice-Admiral Fitzroy.

By Bernard Bigby Correspondent.

"You have prepared your defense well, sir."

"My defense! What are you thinking of, child?"

"But," she added, impressively, heedless of his mocking interruption, "if I could speak of ever molest or annoys me by word or deed, I shall without another word of warning denounce him."

"And I should think that he would appreciate your discretion and give you no cause to regret such an exceedingly wise decision."

"That will do, sir; we understand each other."

Else met with a warm welcome at the Wilders' home. She was hysterical in her gladness to clasp her in her arms, calling her the preserver of her Jack, who sadly spoiled the poetry of the interview by calling from his sick room to the young woman to let her share the joy of Else's adventure.

"Oh, I'm so glad!" he said, with a tear running down his bronzed cheek.

"I ain't no great shakes on speechin', but when I think that but for you I should have been now in kingdom come, never havin' had a home nor the like again, never—so far as I know what a poor binbirber it is—why, what I mean ter say is you've got a friend for life in Jack Wilders, who won't fail in the hour of need."

Then Else, all blushing, with a desire to turn the torrent of the man's gratitude, modestly remarked:

"You are looking better than I expected."

"Oh, I'm tough as hickory, Else. The doctors did kind o' rasp my around, but I've pulled through in spite o' them."

"With good nursing you'll soon be well."

"Good nursin'" he cried, beaming affection on his wife, to whom his words were sweeter than honey; "that's what I want. Millie ain't up to much in this house, and she don't fret an' cry her eyes out, but a fellow here for sixty days at a stretch who takes a wink of sleep—not much she don't, Oh, no!"

"Millie knows that what's good for nothing never comes to pass," the girl with saucy replied.

"Millie is overworked. Else said seriously, "and I am come to share her labors. That is to say, if you will have me."

Else were wild with joy at the prospect. Millie kissed her fondly, and Jack, who had been doing well and that tiresome wife of his was out of the way before he declared his suit, whereupon Mrs. Wilders declared her solemn intention of sending to Chicago for a divorce and resigning her position at the prospector's cottage for life.

"But where's the little boy?" Else asked, presently, when the excitement of the meeting had sobered down a little.

"Ask her," Jack said, pointing to his wife. "She's a real female sent him off to his grandfather in Marquette."

"Only for a day or two, to be out of the way," Millie explained.

"But I scotched her heartless scheme; the little chap's on his way back home."

The great sally couldn't be without his boy for even a couple of days," the wife said, laughing. "Now, Else, we must not let the invalid talk any more. You, sir, go to sleep and show some desire to please the best wife in this wicked world."

Mr. Dodd, ONE WORD WITH YOU.

"God bless her—yes, the best wife in the world," the prospector muttered, as the door closed upon the two women.

"Can see, can see," Mrs. Wilder said, when they were alone. "he is so big and strong that even this sickness has hardly taught him the necessity of rest."

Weeks passed. Else was still with Mrs. Wilder. The pleasant corporal Whitford shone with a womanly friendliness that the color took to her cheeks and elasticity to her steps, but Millie was in trouble about her young friend for all that. The fact was she was mystified, and as she could not read the riddle, jumped like a wildcat to her bosom friend; ergo, Else Whitford was receiving letters from a distance, which she read in her chamber and never discussed even with her bosom friend; ergo, this young woman argued, she is corresponding surreptitiously with some man, and who could that man be but Frank Green? And the good little creature was considerably harassed by the discovery.

Yet that very night Else spoke.

"Millie," she said, "I want to tell you a secret."

Mrs. Wilders' eyes flashed suspicion at once.

"A secret, Else?" she asked coldly.

"Yes, dear; and I want you to promise that you'll never breathe it to a living soul."

"Well, er—that sounds very mysterious."

"Will you promise?"

"No!"

"What! I cannot understand you rightly." Else's big eyes looked wonderingly as though she could not make out the meaning of the emphatic and non-sayable.

"Now, Else, may I ask you a question?" Mrs. Wilders gravely asked.

"Why certainly—of course."

"You were great friends with Mr. Green?"

"Ah, yes, indeed, but those happy days are passed."

"You passed a great deal of him?"

"How could I help it? So good, so generous, so self-denying. Millie, I found me a crude, ignorant girl, with no appreciation of the good and beautiful, no taste for books, no care for self-improvement, no ambition. He left me."

"He'd over heels in love with him," laughed Millie. "That's the worst of handsome young men with a taste for literature."

Else's head dropped and a crimson blush suffused her cheeks.

"I think I did love him," she sighed.

"Well, then, I do love him—to me he is a king, a prince, a demigod."

"My gracious goodness! What's a piece of inflammatibl to the child is."

"And what is your question, Millie?"

"It's a very simple one. Have you heard from Mr. Green since he left Oretown?"

"I heard from him! No, indeed, he has long ago forgotten me. What could such a man as he see in a girl like me to keep me in his memory, much less to trouble himself to write."

But the corporal's right hand was behind his back and his features were no smile.

"Why have you left Else's board-bill unpaid all these years? I have you brought the money in your hand now yourself."

"I didn't pay it because I couldn't."

"Then, dearest Else, the clouds are clearing away, and I can keep your secret, that is, if I may share it with Jack."

"That is of course. Do you think, you stupid, that I ever fancied you could keep a secret from Jack?"

"Well, for the mystery—I do like mysteries."

"Do you remember, Millie, the two ladies who stayed a week at our house a year ago—the strangers from New York, who owned so many shares in the Buffalo mine?"

"Oh, yes; they captivated Jack, and he treated them a lot of mineral specimens."

"Well, they quite took a fancy to me, and, if mother had not made so strong an objection, would have taken me to New York with them then."

"And you have been corresponding with them?—I see it all."

"I have asked them to offer me a temporary home."

"Else Whitford!"

"What else could I do? Misunderstood by friend and mother, persecuted by the prospector, who are infatuated, what resources have I left?"

"This is very serious, Else. Have you the means to go—but that is a secondary consideration, for, of course, Jack—"

"Jack, dear friend, but I have no design on Jack's generosity. To-day I received from Mr. Baxter a draft for the expense of the journey and a loving renewal of her offers."

"Surely, Else, this great New York lady came by conning at your leaving you the most treacherous of all."

"It is a shameless, Jacob Gregson," said in my letter that I was suddenly deprived of the care of my natural protectors, and I sadly fear she labors under the delusion that they are dead."

"Naturally."

"What must I do? I will not remain at home."

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

We are authorized to announce

JUDGE JOHN PHELPS

as a candidate for Circuit Court Judge in this district, subject to the action of the Democratic party. Election November 5, 1895.

We are authorized to announce

JUDGE THOMAS F. COOK

as a candidate for Circuit Court Judge in this district, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce

JUDGE THOS. J. MORROW,

as a candidate for Circuit Judge of the Third Judicial District, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

By authority we announce

JUDGE THOMAS J. WATKINS,

of Lyon County, as a candidate for Circuit Judge of this, the Third judicial district, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Judge Phelps and Morrow have made no agreement to divide the vote of Christian county and it is understood that they will submit their claims to the mass convention at the court house on July 6 and that the successful candidate will receive the entire 12 votes of the county in the Eddyville convention. The two Caloway candidates will do the same, and when the convention meets on July 10 it is not likely that more than four candidates will be named—one from each county.

You can line 'em up one by one, and unless there is a personal difference or obligation, the fight between Line and Cook is the Stone and Hendrick fight over again in this county. It was forced from the start by the men with the purpose in view of capturing Lyon county; but gracious! how it has resolved on them in Caloway, since Watkins has announced in Lyon—Murray Ledger.

A thorough canvass of all the business men of Nashville on the money question has been made by a local enthusiast. He reports 70 per cent. of the retail men for free silver and about the same per cent. of the wholesale men for gold. According to this estimate that city is about 16 to 1 in favor of free silver.

Even the three or four gold men on the Christian county delegation declare themselves as opposed to endorsing Cleveland and Carlisle. They are in favor of no action along that line and upon a resolution of that sort Christian would vote as a unit against it.

We will bury the hatchet, so come along, Bro. Meacham. Jim Smith says he will kill the fatigued calf for the prodigal, and we will hunt up a silver ring for you, and would get shoes for your feet, but leather has advanced.—Eddyville Tale.

Congressman Hill is convalescent, and has left Washington for Narragansett Pier, R. I., where he expects to regain his health more rapidly.

The Famous Trip to the Sea Shore.

While the trip to Old Point Comfort is more than a month off, there is already more interest manifested than for several years past, and there is not the least doubt about a big crowd August 7. The rate has not yet been fixed, but it will be about the same as formerly, and the route and other conditions will be similar to former programs. As every one who has ever taken this delightful trip well knows, it is one of great enjoyment, at very small expense, and no one can possibly arrange to go abroad for less. The excursion is really held said complimentary of the famous C. & O. route, which the party is always taken, that little remains to be told. It is a well-known fact that everyone who can arrange to do so, goes east via the summer resorts of the Alleghany mountains. There is so much to do in the beauties and wonders of the country along the Chesapeake & Ohio railway, especially along the Kanawha and through New river canons and across the Alleghany and Blue Ridge mountains that this has become the popular route from the west to nearly all points on the eastern coast and north. It is also a route that is very popular with those whose time is limited, but as well with those who are seeking the most delightful spots either for health or pleasure. Stop over privileges will be allowed on returning from the sea shore and parties do not spend a few days at any of the numerous towns as well as celebrated watering places in West Virginia, can do. A full program of the trip will be published in the Kentuckian a little later along, when further particulars will be given.

DEATHS.

McPHERSON—Judge Jno. W. McPherson died at his home in this city Friday night, the 21st inst., after a long illness of dropsy. His condition had been growing worse for some weeks and his death was not unexpected. The funeral services were held at the Ninth street Methodist church, in which body he had long been an elder. Most of the churches held no morning services and the procession that followed the body to the cemetery was one of the largest ever seen in the city.

A brief sketch of his life is taken from Perrin's history of Christian county.

"John W. McPherson was born in Fauquier county, Va., Sept. 18, 1828.

His father, John McPherson, and his mother, Sarah McDonald, both of whom were of Scotch ancestry, were natives of Virginia.

Judge McPherson was the youngest of eleven children. He attended his majoring in his native state, receiving an academic education. In 1844 he began the study of law, and two years later he was admitted to practice which he continued in Lexington, Va. He continued in practice until 1859, having meantime served as county attorney for eight years. He came to Christian county in 1859 and engaged in merchandising, but in 1864 resumed his practice, in which he was very successful. From 1865 until 1871 he was associated with the late G. A. Chapman under the firm name of McPherson & Chapman. He was married in West Virginia in Dec. 1849, to Miss Margaret Withrow. Five sons and one daughter were the fruits of this union.

Some years ago Judge McPherson married again. His second wife was Miss Nannie Peoples, of Louisiana, who survives him. All of his children excepting the oldest son also survive.

In 1858 Judge McPherson was elected judge of the court of common pleas for Christian county, one of the most important in the state, defeating a popular Republican by a good majority. This position he held for four years, until the court was abolished. In all the walks of life, whether public or private, he commanded the respect and esteem of his neighbors. He was a lawyer and a statesman, a citizen of worth and influence and a gentleman who enjoyed the confidence and good will of a large circle from friends who learned to appreciate his many noble qualities during a residence of 35 years in Hopkinsville.

In his death the bar association of Kentucky mourned the loss of one of its mainstay, the community a valued citizen and his family a devoted husband and father.

The bar held a meeting Saturday morning and adopted the following resolutions:

"This is the Reason Why They Are Usually Leave Our Northern Climates.

Why do the birds fly southward each autumn and return again with every spring? No one knows, but science in the person of Prof. Wang, the eminent Austrian ornithologist, has just disclosed that the usual flippancy answer to this question:

"Because they like to travel," is not far out of the way after all, says the New York World.

In a lecture that Prof. Wang recently delivered at Vienna he gave some extremely interesting details regarding the migrations of birds

all of which migrations resemble one another in two respects: they follow the most direct line southward and are made with almost incredible rapidity. Numerous observations have been made at Helgoland, which is the principal halting place of birds of passage from northern countries and in Egypt, which is the winter home of many, and these observations have established some facts hitherto unknown.

The blue birds traverse the four hundred nautical miles which separate Egypt from Helgoland in a single night, which is at the rate of more than fifty geographical miles per hour. The bird's speed is over two and one-half miles per minute, or nearly three times that of the fastest railway train. Even the young birds, six or eight weeks old, old, compare the others in their long journey.

Prof. Wang asks himself what is the impulse which causes the birds, after the brooding and molting season, to quit our northern climate. He does not think it is fear of cold—for many species quite as delicate as those which migrate southward easily withstand the rigors of the winter, but that they have an irresistible humor for traveling. This is his idea of the fact, but he can give no explanation.

"Bob" and "Al."

Bob Taylor and his brother, Alf, have been induced to take the platform in joint discussion, Bob choosing "Dixie" and Alf addresses himself to "Yankee Doodle." It will be one of the drawing attractions of next season to hear these two gifted brothers again, and will revive memories of the white and red rose campion. Managers have booked two meetings for Oct. 30, and Ol�uklave, Nashville, and Hopkinsville are the only cities in this section of the country afforded an opportunity of hearing Bob and Alf—Leaf-Chronicle.

The various watering places around us are filling up with guests as the heat approaches.

THEY WANT A CHANGE

Latin-Americans Believe in the Doctrine of New Broome

The Only Exemplary Revolution Now Raging Is the Cuban Uprising—There Are Others But None
Entitled to Our Sympathy.

(Notes for This Paper.)

To keep track of the doings of our Spanish-American cousins is a task requiring more than ordinary industry. A Philadelphia lawyer would hardly be able to remember, from day to day, the names of the men who had been in hand a revolution or two, to say nothing of explaining the causes leading to the uprisings against alleged constitutional authority.

The struggle in Cuba, of course, is one for independence. It is based on a patriotic cause and in it are enlisted the best men and the best thought of the island. Year after year, decade after decade, the government of Spain has maintained in Cuba a vast military establishment, the cost of which had to be paid by the people it was to enslave. The commerce of the country

(Proclaimed President of the Cuban Republic by the Insurgents.)

—both imports and exports—was regulated by the authorities at Madrid, whose only object was to collect as large an amount of duties as possible. The great sugar industry of the Island was ruined by Spanish legislation and even the fine tobacco industry, of which Cuba has a monopoly by the grace of God, was jeopardized and disgraced.

Many years ago Lopez and his liberators made the first determined and organized effort to throw off the Spanish yoke. All the world knows that this revolutionary movement ended in disaster and the writer has learned many details of those days. But the old adage about the blood of martyrs proved true in their case. For every patriot slain a dozen converts appeared, and despite increased military forces and the concentration of vast fortifications the Spanish became unable to quell the revolutionary spirit of the progressive Cubans. In 1876 Gen. Martinez de Campos had to be sent from Madrid to suppress the rebellion, and once more the same dignitary is in the Island to subdue the armed patriots by force of arms. His chief purpose is as clever a diplomat as he is a soldier. Seventeen years ago the Spanish troops were on the verge of defeat. The invading army was disorganized and the patriots were gallantly fighting. In Spain alone, dollars, thirty thousand of them, and with them persuaded Gen. Maso to lay down his arms. The patriots, betrayed by their friends, succumbed to the inevitable; but scores of those who fought for their liberty fell again to death under the command of able leaders. The insurgents have proclaimed Tomas Estrada Palma president of the Cuban republic. They are fighting under the leadership of Gen. Martinez de Campos, an able soldier; Maso, a wealthy patrician; and other famous men, and other famous men. Unfortunately not all of the revolutionary generals are as trustworthy as those mentioned, and it is feared by lovers of liberty everywhere that when need of heavy cooperation comes the latter do not among Latin-Americans more than any other feeling or any principle whatever.

But whether the present rising shall end in defeat or victory for the insurgents, Spain is prepared to make many concessions to the native element. Gen. Campos is reported to be willing to grant partial autonomy to the Island, Spain reserving only the rights of veto and to change the existing civil service rules by appointing native Cubans to fill half of all the government positions. Whether such a readjustment of affairs would prove satisfactory to the rebel leaders cannot be predicted with any degree of certainty.

In Ecuador a revolution has just been inaugurated for the purpose of ousting President Louis Cordero and his cabinet. The uprising is general, and extends to all the more important points along the coast. The rebels are exceptionally well organized and directed by men who have smuggled powder here now. Diplomats who have been interviewed in regard to the insurrection pretend that there exists no cause for dissatisfaction, the revolt being the outbreak of a periodical desire for a change in government affairs. President Cordero is a great fighter, how- —————— the exception of a number of revolutionary leaders. But should the latter, contrary to present expectations, succeed in whipping the government forces, Cordero and his advisers, loaded down with riches acquired during their ten years of rule, will find no neutral soil where they could enjoy the "rewards of their industry."

In the meantime the United States government has sent a cruiser to Esmeralda for the protection of American citizens and prompt retribution by warlike operations of the approach of force.

Ecuador is a prosperous South American republic, lying between Colombia on the north, Peru on the south, and the Pacific ocean on the west. It has a population of about 1,350,000 and claims an area of 273,900 square miles, all of which was won by Bolivar in 1830. Until 1880 the country was part of the Colombian confederation, when it seceded and adopted its present name. The republic is governed by a president and a congress composed of two chambers, the Chamber being the only representative body created by the constitution. Much of the trade of Ecuador is in American hands, hence our government is considerably interested in the outcome of the present difficulties.

The United States Colonies are still at war, though rebels in various parts of the country, but the restoration of complete tranquillity is so near at hand that official bulletins concerning the progress of the government forces are no longer issued with the regularity of former times. An appearance of additional source of amusement last year. If the government troops really killed as many rebels as their officers claimed the wonder is that Colombia has any subjects left for the president to govern.

Under a captain's commission, his experience gained in the border, he was given a peculiarly difficult promotion, evidenced by his rapid promotion in his own original regiment. His commission as captain bears date of October 8, 1861; major, June 25, 1862; lieutenant colonel, October 25, 1862; colonel, May 10, 1863; brigadier general, October 10, 1863; and brigadier general, March 13, 1864.

He was made a lieutenant colonel and received a medal for unexcelled bravery in Shiloh Creek Valley, W. Va., Thanksgiving day, 1863. In 1864, when he was promoted to brigadier general, he was appointed to command the Second Cavalry Division, relieving Gen. A. J. Smith, who had been promoted as commander of the Second Cavalry division that immortalized the name and fame of Phil Sheridan and his cavalry. He has been a resident, Belleville, Ill., his present home, since September, 1867, was a charter member of Heckler post, #45, and remains a continuously active member of his post.

OLDEST MAN LIVING.

Believed to be One Hundred and Twenty

Three Years of Age.

Is Noah Babu, the Piscataway poor farmer, the oldest man in poor health? If the stories are true which he tells to the New York Herald, he is true, he has passed his 132nd birthday. It was about eighty-three years ago, according to his recollection, that Noah Babu, ordinary seaman, received a discharge from the British frigate Brandywine, which had just finished a cruise of inspection of the various ports of the United States, and was then docked at the Brooklyn navy yard. The day after he left the naval service he went to New Jersey, where he joined himself to a New Jersey, and for money agreed to serve as a hired man. Since that time he has never stepped outside the boundaries of New Jersey. For more than a half century, with more or less steadiness, he followed the occupation he had chosen, and then, twenty-eight years ago, being full of years and decidedly an insurance started on a more shadowy than this Nicaragua uprising.

Mail advices from the other Central American republics—Guatemala, San Salvador, Honduras and Costa Rica—indicate that popular discontent is developing rapidly in most of them. But it is believed, and it is believed Anglo-Saxons must not for a moment suppose that such discontent is based on any particular act of misgovernment. It is, on the contrary, frequently caused by the removal and unscrupulous plotting for change, the latter dominating Latin-Americans more than any other feeling or any principle whatsoever.

After reading of all these revolutions with their inevitable bloodshed one is pleased to learn that the friendly government of Chile and Bolivia have concluded a treaty of peace and friendship. The treaty promises to be of profit to our merchants, as it makes Bolivia a Pacific coast country, after an interval of eleven years. When Chile concluded the treaty with Bolivia, the Chilean visitors grabbed all of Bolivia's sea coast territory, leaving the unhappy Republic completely landlocked and without opportunity for commerce by the Pacific and without means to maintain a navy of which it had once had the nucleus. Under the present treaty Chile gives up its Pacific coast port and a strip of territory leading to it. This will enable it to resume foreign commerce without the necessity of crossing Chilean soil. Chile, in exchange for this concession, is granted the right to maintain a garrison in the final settlement of the Chilean-Bolivian dispute without much hard feeling is the only international adjustment reported with a decade of which our Latin-American neighbors have honest cause to be proud.

Just over the boundary line of Washington, Pa., in the town of Finley, a certain man has run his general store for thirty years. Last spring Jim was elected to the state legislature. The general feeling of surprise among those who knew him, as well as the estimation placed upon him by his friends, was gathered by the following question addressed to him: "What is the result of your knowledge of local politics?" "Say, Jim, how is it that such an old, ramshackle, lying, ornery curmudgeon as you ever could get elected as a representative?" "Simplest thing in the world," replied Jim, while a broad smile illuminated his wrinkled face.

AN ACTIVE VETERAN.

Gen. William H. Powell, Just Elected A. E. Grand Councilor of the Knights of Pythias, was born in Carrollton, Ga., April 14, 1831, and received a company of whom were his former employees, in Lawrence County, O., and reported with his regiment to "Rendezvous" camp, at Parkersburg, W. Va., September 14, and was mustered into the service of the state, and completed the organization, commissioned by Gov. Pierpont as the Second regiment Loyal West Virginia volunteer cavalry, U. S. A. He served under Gens. Rosecrans, Cox, Milroy and Crook, in Virginia, in 1862 and 1863. Beginning his service as an independent, he was soon recruited by the 12th Ohio, serving in the 12th Ohio, and was promoted to captain, and in the meantime the United States government has sent a cruiser to Esmeralda for the protection of American citizens and prompt retribution by warlike operations of the approach of force.

Just over the boundary line of Washington, Pa., in the town of Finley, a certain man has run his general store for thirty years. Last spring Jim was elected to the state legislature. The general feeling of surprise among those who knew him, as well as the estimation placed upon him by his friends, was gathered by the following question addressed to him: "What is the result of your knowledge of local politics?" "Say, Jim, how is it that such an old, ramshackle, lying, ornery curmudgeon as you ever could get elected as a representative?" "Simplest thing in the world," replied Jim, while a broad smile illuminated his wrinkled face.

DOLABELLE'S LETTER.

The Latest Fashions and Designs in Mourning Dress.

Custom of Wearing Black for Deceased Relatives is a Very Old One—Presentation of Mourning Dress—Its Extravagance.

[Special New York Letter.]

It occurs to me that as there is in every community a large contingent of persons who dress in black as a token of bereavement in these interludes between spring and summer fashions some design in mourning dress might be acceptable. True, the styles do not change so rapidly in this country as in England, but the latter is in the height of elegance for the ultra-fashionable costume is quite as popular for the more somber garb of respect to the departed—I allude to the corrugated crimpons and crepe-finished novelty goods published recently in "The Times" reporter, it is here published.

At the time the rheumatism started in my right knee, and after a lingering illness it settled generally in my joints. I was finally able to arise, but for the past year have been unable to walk without crutches, and my body was bent half toward the ground. I went to the best dispensary in Kansas City, and was there for about six weeks, and without the slightest good, I then tried a strong galvanic battery, with which I was greatly relieved, but the doctor treated me (including Dr. Kade and Madde) with leeches, and I came home, with crutches, and pain still remaining.

"About this time my attention was called to the account of a remarkable cure by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale Patients, and I ordered some of the pills as an experiment. When I began to take them, the pain disappeared, and I was free from paralysis; my leg from the thigh down was cold all the time, and could not be kept warm. In a short time I was able to walk without crutches, and could enjoy a sound and restful night's sleep, something I had not known for ten years. To-day am perfectly well, and am able to walk without crutches, and am again cured of my terrible and agonizing ailment. No magician of the Far East ever wrought the miracle that I have seen, and that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me."

To verify the story beyond all question of doubt Mr. Woodson made affidavit to the above facts, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Subscribed and sworn to before me this 8th day of March, 1894.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are safe, simple and effective, and may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c. per box, or six boxes for $3.50.

Those who are ordinarily the most careful in speech are sometimes led by excitement into the use of expressions which convey a meaning far different from what was intended.

The president of one of our leading colleges was annoyed one morning by the unseemly behavior of some of the students during the chapel services. Pausing for a moment, he turned toward the disturbing group and in a tone of great solemnity said:

"Young gentlemen, you evidently forgot that by your conduct in this place you are not only showing disrespect to Almighty God, but also to me." —Ram's Horn.

The style of these gowns was in their cut and trimming, and the rich material employed. One interior gown of princess shape was very simple, yet not totally elegant. It was of accorded plaited chiffon over black lusterless silk falling loose at the feet, and caught in the waistband, a wide lace of jet embroidery. Large collar and embroidery revers reveal falling over the shoulders. Gigot sleeves of plaited chiffon with embroidered gauntlets.

Then there was a dress of the silk material, with an arched belt and sash and equally suitable for the gay costumes of the society woman, or the habit of the mourner. The breast of this dress was hung with dull black chains of jet, making a deep "V" front, and the big bows were of the same material. All the seams were accentuated by the use of dull bead balls. The effect of the lining was very striking, the wide skirt being sustained by walls of silk and haircloth, white, were combined in an artistic manner.

I must beg to mention a costume which was much admired by the few who were privileged to see this mourning order. It was a stylized gown of Henrietta cloth in one of the new fine weaves combined with English crepe. The sash of this gown was stiffened and stiffened, and the bodice was in a language of beauty and sorrow. There was a cape fold at the edge of the skirt, and bands of crimp ran from the waist on each side of the pointed corselet to within a short distance of the hem. The bodice was decorated with large flat bows of the same sash, without ends. The bodice had a yoke of the crimp which was pointed on either side of the arms and curved across the center. The sleeves were large and loose, the upper part falling over the elbow in soft, flowing folds, and the lower part in a series of graceful curves.

The neck was a wrinkled stock of a crimp, with large crimp bows on each side, and the waistband was the same, with flat bows at the side. The gown was lined throughout with a soft lusterless silk, which also was used for the bodice.

Jackets of heavy black cloth with a rough surface are much worn at present in mourning. The only trimming is a large black button, six of which decorate the front.

The bonnet, which is a mere crescent, is trimmed with a veil of English crepe or nun's veiling, or coarse mesh Brussels net, with a deep hem, which is the latest style, and is worn by young widows as well as those in black for parents or other near relatives. Indeed the young widow in her second year is often quite giddy in her

English mourning, derived from the chipping leaf at the death of the year. There were statutes in England which forbade garments cut in fantastic or odd shapes, and the confection of the garment was to be done in silence.

The Chinese wear white for mourning, being to them the color of hope. It will be recalled by the reader of history that Mary Stuart, Queen of Scots, was called the "White Queen" because she wore white when the widow of Lord Darnley. She had also given her name to a bonnet which was white with a red band with a white rose on it.

There is a tendency in America to do away with the wearing of black, but the newest edict of the doctors is that the putting on of mourning is a sanitary measure.

It is a sanitary measure, it keeps the thoughts of the bereaved from the gloom and sorrow of death, and gives them a chance for reaction, a healthy impulse in the direction of life and self.

In Australia and New Zealand, there are peculiar customs which those who are fond of the wish of friends who are gone, do not adopt a mourning habit. A card of apology is published in connection with a notice of the demise which reads: "By the wish of the deceased the family and relatives will not wear black.
